What's going on here? AnBridge, the nonprofit organization dedicated to beautifying the cityscape by transforming underutilized city surfaces into canvas for the work of local emerging artists, is pleased to bring you its latest exhibition, Works in Progress. The installation spans over 400 feet and features the work of emerging artists who all live and make their art in Brooklyn. Each piece featured in the exhibition rifts on, references or reveals something about the artist and their artistic process and was selected by Vik Muniz, Aniam Olu and Eugenie Tsai, a team of some of Brooklyn's finest artists and curators.
