FILMING INCENTIVES

Great news for New York's film and television industry: Governor Cuomo has proposed extending and enhancing the State's popular film and production tax credit program in this year's executive budget. The program, which has created thousands of jobs and injected billions of dollars into New York's economy, is positioning the state as "Hollywood East," and showing great potential for serious and sustained growth in Upstate New York.

In addition to fantastic and film-friendly locations throughout the State, New York offers several incentive programs which are making it the place to film and produce. Read more here.

PREMIERES, FAREWELLS & A GUIDE TO NY'S TV SERIES

Thanks to New York State's Film Production Incentive program, several television programs are making their premieres or continuing their successful seasons.

30 Rock Series Finale

New York has also been home to two fan favorites, Gossip Girl and 30 Rock, that ended their successful runs this season. Though they will no longer be making new episodes, we know we'll be seeing them in syndication for years to come. Read more here.

POST PRODUCTION REACHES NEW HIGHS

Oscar Nominated Moonrise Kingdom

Last July Governor Andrew Cuomo signed legislation that boosted New York State's Post Production Credit from 10% to 30%-35%. Since the legislation went into effect, projects have been coming to New York at an unprecedented rate. In six short months, the newly enhanced Post Production Credit has received double the applications than the original 10% program received in two years. Currently the program has 51 projects participating.

To qualify, productions must do 75% of their post production work in New York State even if the film was made elsewhere. As an added
